JAYAN THOMAS is a licensed clinical social worker and licensed marriage and family therapist employed with Norton Neurology Services in Louisville. She received her undergraduate degree from Centre College and her masters degree in social work from the University of Louisville Kent School of Social Work. Jayan was diagnosed with bilateral hearing loss at age 5 and received a cochlear implant in 2010. She grew up in Louisville and is married with two elementary age children. She enjoys volunteering and is very involved with the special needs ministry at Northeast Christian Church.

Coping with hearing loss can be difficult through the life stages and each person and family member copes differently. Come and learn skills for coping successfully in the context of family relationships!

The meeting is realtime captioned by McLendon-Kogut Reporting Service and is free and open to the public.
